TOBACCO TROUBLES

In Brown County—Edmund Martin's Defenses For Raising a Crop

A writer in The Times-Star has an interesting account of the tobacco situation in Brown county, Ohio, and speaking of Edmund Martin's determination to grow a crop, says—

"Perhaps the most interesting place in the whole District is at the Martin farm, which is mined at night and where Private Sigel was accidentally wounded by a bomb. Martin has about twenty-five bombs made like the one used on the door of the Phoenix Club. They are made of gas pipes plugged with a cap at one end and a wooden plug at the other. These are loaded with slugs of iron. A nipple is placed on each one like on the old-time muzzle-loading guns, which bears a cap. Wires connect weights that are suspended over the bombs, and when a wire is touched it throws the weight and the explosion takes place. The bombs are arranged so that they will only discharge their contents into the feet of the person striking the wire. These bombs are placed every night and taken up every morning. Martin lives in what was once a log house. It is a square building. He has erected a bulkhead on the four walls of his house with heavy planking eighteen inches from the wall and about seven feet high. He has filled this with gravel and sand. At each window he has loopholes and can cover his tobacco fields in this manner. It's a regular fort. Other farmers have taken extra precautions, but none as radical as Mr. Martin's. He is determined to save his tobacco at any cost.

"The situation in the District is a peculiar one. At one place the farmers refused to furnish the soldiers transportation, though offered good pay. Families are divided by the trouble. A case came to the notice of Major Becht of a farmer whose head was scraped. It was told that his daughter admitted that she did it.

"Another story that reached the Major was that two men who were working a tobacco field on shares woke up one morning and found their heads scraped. Later it became known that one of the partners had scraped the head.

"One farmer said to Captain Brooks: 'Why, the Lord is with us. He won't send these planters rain which they need so badly. We are doing a service to our Lord when we scrape these heads.'

MR. BRYAN declares he is agin' the Trusts, but he seems to forget that he controls the Democratic Trust, which is quite a voters' combine.

It is quite appropriate that the Denver Convention should open today with a Bell. It will close with the customary dull thud November 3d.

A PLEASANT way to spend the summer would be to get a job with the Tariff Commission or act as Engineer on the Bryan special in his third Presidential tour.

THE Tammany delegation to the Denver Convention carried along 8,000 pints of wine and 35,000 bottles of beer. After the braves have gotten outside of that much slop they'll be ready to vote for any old thing.

HENRY WATTERSON's serpent-like attack upon GROVER CLEVELAND's memory and the million Cleveland Democrats who stand today for the Cleveland policies will be fully resented and duly answered at the November election. The pot-walloping stunt is being awkwardly executed by this new crowd of Democratic campaign managers.

THE Republican party will preserve the Protective principles in the Tariff, while adapting the schedules to new conditions.

"THE new BRYAN" sounds natural. Mr. BRYAN and his supporters talk of ROOSEVELT and the Republican party as purloiners of his principles.

That sounds funny, considering that Mr. BRYAN has a new set of principles and a different schedule of policies

Not one of Mr. BRYAN's so-called great economical plans of National government lasts more than four years.

His "immortal 16 to 1" wasn't a year old until this celebrated silver-baby-first-born was too weak to sit up and take notice that the American voters considered it a rank 24-karat fake.

BRYAN's Government ownership proposition is just as rank as "16 to 1."

"The Peerless One" seems to sit up of nights studying up some new, novel and unheard-of policy with which he attempts to throw Populistic dust in the eyes of the American people for a very brief period and then it is all over with him until another four years roll around.

This is the why and the wherefore that there are millions of people who naturally term WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN a political demagogue.

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20, 1907."

ITCHING CURED With Cuticura Remedies in Three Days After Six Months of Suffering.

"I suffered fully six months. The trouble began on my arms in little red pimples and it was not long before it was all over my body, limbs, face, and hands. It was so bad that I could not rest night or day and during the six months I did not get a good night's sleep. I doctored for three or four months and spent at least twenty dollars trying to find a cure but none could be found. Then I saw the Cuticura Remedies advertised, and the next day I purchased some for seventy-five cents at the drugist's. I used them and I was relieved of the itching in three days, and I have never had a sign of my skin disease since. The Cuticura Remedies are the only remedies to use for skin diseases, they have cured me and they will cure others in the same way. J. W. Bloom, R. R. JUST REGULATION.

The Public and the Investor Both Have Rights.

The Problem of State Legislatures. What is a Reasonable Return Upon Capital Invested?—Experimental Industries Should Offer Unusual Profits to the Enterprising Investor.

By EVERETT W. BURDETT.

The subject of public control of private investments in quasi public enterprises has had a somewhat natural and logical development in this country. Beginning at practically the zero point, it progressed slowly at first, but is now moving forward with giant strides. At the time of their inception these new enterprises were so welcome to the public that it did not seek to throw about them any obstructive or harassing conditions. Rather, it welcomed them with open arms and was only anxious for their establishment and development.

This is strikingly shown by the provisions of the charters granted by the state of Massachusetts to three of the first railroads in this country, organized respectively in 1829 and 1830—that the rates of fare and freight, the construction of the roads, the form of cars "and all other matters and things in relation to the use" of the roads should be wholly within the discretion of the directors. At the close of 1830 the total railroad mileage of the United States was only twenty-three, and the public was and for many years continued to be interested in the establishment and development and not in the regulation and control of railroads.

And so it was with reference to the electric telegraph. The first line was built between Baltimore and Washington in 1844, and, if my memory is not at fault, congress voted the inventor a large sum in recognition of his contribution to the public welfare.

So also when the street railway was introduced in 1852 and its successor, the electric railway, about 1880, and when the telephone and electric light both made their first appearance in commercial use in 1876 the communities which they were established to serve were clamorous for their introduction and were not much if at all concerned about their regulation.

But in all these cases what was at first a wonder or a novelty soon became a commonplace adjunct to daily life. The public awakened to the fact that these utilities had not been established for purely eleemosynary purposes—that, in the expressive language of the day, their owners were "not in business for their health." The more modern doctrine, promulgated, I believe, from New York city, of "the public be damned" was a more or less natural outcome of later conditions. The result was that in each case and in a somewhat natural order the public took a hand in what turned out to be the dangerous game of public regulation and control.

At first these efforts took the form of rate regulation in the case of railroads. These were frequently the product of resentment and prejudice and except for the intervention of the federal judiciary would have been disastrous. By throwing over transportation companies the protection of the constitution, guaranteeing all our citizens, including corporations, against spoliation under the forms of law, ruinous consequences of ill advised legislation have frequently been avoided.

The supreme court, while affirming the right and exclusive authority of state legislatures to regulate rates and fix maximum charges, has also subjected the reasonableness of legislative action in this respect to the test of judicial inquiry. It has insisted upon rates which are sufficiently alike to give a reasonable return upon a reasonable investment and at the same time be inherently fair and reasonable to the public. While insisting that ordinarily a corporation is entitled to some profit upon its enterprise, the court has not as yet undertaken to say what that profit shall be, except in one case (192 U. S. 201, 1903), that the rates of a water company may be lawfully reduced by legislative action to a point where the business will yield only 6 per cent upon the fair value of the investment.

It seems natural and appropriate to suggest at this point that one of the most important functions of the newly created public service commissions of the state of New York may be to determine, in the first instance, what a reasonable return is upon capital invested in the public service corporations which are under their supervision and control, and it is at least reasonable to indulge the hope that they will not undertake to limit that return within the narrow margin which has been accepted by the court as sufficient in the case of such a comparatively simple and well established enterprise as that of the supply of water. There is but little analogy between the cases. If the return on capital invested in what can be properly described as essentially experimental industries, such as street railway and electric enterprises, is to be confined to any such figure as 6 per cent it will, in my judgment, be a sorry day, not only for those who have their money at hazard in these enterprises, but for the public at large whose interest lies in their proper development and extension.

As conservative a man as President Eliot of Harvard university has recently said:

"In such enterprises there are often heavy risks. . . . Hence men will not undertake them for the ordinary return on safe investments. They must be induced to venture their capital tal and their capacity by a prospect of unusual returns."

So far as I know public service corporations other than steam railroads have in but rare instances been made the subject of state regulation or control by special tribunals created for the purpose. They have ordinarily been left at the mercy of state legislatures or, worse yet, of the various municipal authorities where they operate. They have thus been forced more or less into state and local politics, a course justified, if at all, by the dictates of "the first law of nature"—that of self defense. But in 1894 the state of Massachusetts entered upon a more enlightened experiment in public regulation and control of quasi public enterprises, and since that time the capitalization, debt, rates, service and general conduct of the public service corporations of Massachusetts have been within the control and regulation of public bodies created for the purpose.

The one primal defect in the laws of Massachusetts regulating and limiting the stock and bond issues of its public service corporations, an error which ought to be avoided in the administration of the law in New York, lies in the failure to discriminate between new enterprises or hazardous extensions of old enterprises on the one hand and well established industries on the other. Admitting that the securities of the latter can properly be limited to amounts sufficient only to cover the reasonable expense of ordinary additions to plant and the returns upon them to the going rates of interest or profit legitimate in established businesses of like character, the reasonableness of the rule disappears when applied to extensions of unusual character or into fields of doubtful profit, and particularly to cases of incursions by new enterprises into hitherto unexploited fields.

The pioneer who first dares to explore hitherto unexploited territory or the investor who is willing to increase the usefulness of his enterprise by extending it into channels of doubtful profit should not be treated in the matter of initial securities or the returns upon them with the same strictness as the conservative investor in an established business. To quote President Eliot again:

"There is much to be said on behalf of the proposition that there shall be no water in the stock of public service corporations, yet if this principle had been applied to all street railway and lighting companies during the past thirty-five years the public would have waited long for facilities which they have greatly enjoyed and profited by." The great authority of the supreme court of the United States, as expressed in the case of Handley versus Stutz, 139 U. S., 417, stands for substantially the same proposition.

THE FEAR OF POLITICS.

Why High Grade Employees Prefer Private Positions.

One of the first results of the semi-municipal ownership of trolleys in Cleveland is the feeling of high grade employees that they had better look for positions which are not hampered and endangered by political interference. Of the resignation of the engineer of maintenance of way the Cleveland News says:

"Engineer Tilton of the former traction regime resigned his place Tuesday because his profession had nothing in common with politics. He feared that politics might come to be a factor in the affairs of the holding company. He had had that fear ever since the public was told that the board of directors could not meet to discuss a grave labor difficulty because most of the members had gone to Columbus to attend a political convention."

The same paper quotes Mr. Tilton as saying:

"I desire to say that I hold Mr. du Pont in the highest esteem. Moreover, I don't want to criticize the mayor and his associates for being politicians either. They have a perfect and absolute right to be politicians. It is the fact I am looking at. Here is a management which includes Mayor Johnson, City Solicitor Baker, Senator Howe, County Solicitor Stage and Senator Thomas P. Schmidt. All of them are politicians. It is the political influence I fear for the future. Those men cannot keep politics out—could not if they tried. I don't doubt they mean well by me. It is the inevitable situation that makes it seem to me well to make a change."

Postal Tyranny.

As showing how far advanced this country is in bureaucratic interference with personal liberty the article on "Russians in the American Post-offices" in a recent issue of the Public will be a revelation to most Americans. The writer shows how men have been driven out of business by "fraud orders" issued by the postoffice department when the courts have held their business to be untainted by fraud. Moreover, these orders, which prevent a man from receiving any mail, are kept in force after the courts have pronounced the business legitimate. Truly we are passing from a republic into a bureaucracy.

They.

Why don't they keep the streets a little cleaner?
You ask, with deep annoyance not undue.
Why don't they keep the parks a little greener?
(Did you ever stop to think that they means you?)
How long will they permit this graft and stealing?
Why don't they see the courts are clear and true?
Why will they wink at crooked public dealing?
(Did you ever stop to think that they means you?)

REQUISITIONS

For Taylor and Finley—Four Trials of Caleb Powers Have Cost State $40,000

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 6th.—The last legal step in the Caleb Powers case was taken today when Special Judge J. S. Morris went to Georgetown and formally called for trial the case of the Commonwealth against Caleb Powers, charged with the Goebel murder. This was the day fixed at the last Powers trial for re-trial. Jailer Finley filed the pardon granted Powers by Governor Willson and the case finally was stricken from the docket.

Judge Morris ordered $5,000 witness claims for the last trial paid, and the Marlin rifle, said to have been used to kill Goebel, returned to Grant Roberts of this city. The total cost to the State of the four trials of Powers aggregates $40,000.

The only cases now pending for the murder of Senator Goebel are against ex-Governor W. S. Taylor, ex-Secretary of State Charles Finley both in Indiana for refuge. The cases will be called at the next term of the Franklin Court Governor Willson will be asked to issue requisitions for them.

The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. TWO SIZES—50c. and $1.00. J. JAMES WOOD & SON, Special Agents.

CASE AFTER CASE.

Plenty More Like This in Mayville.

Scores of Mayville people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Mrs. Nathan A. Hafer, living in the Western part of Mayville, Ky., says:

"My estimation of Doan's Kidney Pills is so great that I have not the least hesitancy in publicly recommending them. For ten years I was bothered by backache, during which time I tried various remedies without obtaining any beneficial results. There was a constant, dull ache across my back, often accompanied by sharp rheumatic twinges throughout my body. I was subject to nervous headache and dizzy spells, and on arising in the morning felt so tired that it seemed as if I had not been to sleep at all. Mr. Hafer, who had been cured of backache by Doan's Kidney Pills, advised me to give them a trial, and I procured a box at J. J. Wood & Son's Drugstore. They soon proved their efficiency in my case, and I did not have to take them long when all my trouble disappeared."

Did You Ever
Stop to think that if you personally selected the cloth for your own garments you would look different from the rank and file you meet, and that if this cloth were cut to your own measure, and skillfully and honestly tailored by hand, you would have clothes that fit you more perfectly and give you better service than the clothing worn by the masses? Think it over, then have me make you a suit from the cloth and fashion you like best; you will then understand what real merchant tailoring is. The cost is but slight compared with the value given.
